So by degrees he would decide who was best fitted for each and every position, with a number of able substitutes, who could be called on should there be any change necessary during a game, from injury, or because a certain player failed to do what was expected of him. After the game had come to an end, and the crowd commenced to separate, as usual, Hugh and Thad started to walk home together. They overtook Owen Dugdale and hastened to join him. Both boys doubtless had a little thrill just then, remembering how often the other had been in their thoughts lately. Owen seemed to be in great spirits. I never knew that I had it in me to become so fond of baseball as I seem to be doing right now, he told them. Of course I played a little at several kinds of games like cricket, and since coming here to Scranton I ve been knocking flies for some of the boys, and playing in scrub games. But now I enjoy it ever so much, though, of course, I don t dream that I ll have the good luck to be selected for the team, when there are so many who know more about the game than I do. You can safely leave all that to Mr. Leonard, Owen, said Hugh. I ve been keeping tabs on your play at short, and honestly, I want to say, you re doing mighty well. I heard Mr. Leonard say so, too. While you may not be picked for that position, there s a likelihood that you will be held as a substitute. Only practice your...
