Still no active measures seem to have been taken towards effecting the object, until sometime in the next year, 1823. As it had been put in operation, at first, by Bishop Smiths bringing his private academy into its building, and had once been revived by Dr. Buists doing the same thing, a similar plan was now naturally thought of. To this end, a negotiation was entered into during the latter part of the year 1823, between the trustees and the Rev. John Dickson, the Rev. Mr. Gilbert and William E. Bailey, Esq. ; each of whom had a flourishing private school or academy in the city. The result of this negotiation was, an agreement that those gentlemen should transfer their schools to the college buildings, and commence operations on the first of January, 1824. To inspire confidence in the plan,...
