More particularly is such information essential to those who are undergoing some form of training designed with the object of fitting them ultimately to occupy positions of responsibility in industry. Equally important is a knowledge of the fundamentals of industrial organization to those who, while not actually engaged in industry, are nevertheless affected by the manner in which it is conducted. The volume is therefore addressed to students of industrial technology, both in universities or technical colleges, and in industry; to students of economics and sociology; to teachers in evening schools, continuation schools, and works schools who desire to know something of the conditions under which their students in industry are employed; to supervisory members of industry, such as foremen and inspectors; and to working men and women who wish to study either privately or through the medium of study circles, the general organization of modern industry.
