First Nature did he blame, the author of his life, 1325 In which his joys had been so scant, and sorrows aye so rife; The time and place of birth he fiercely did reprove, He cried out, with open mouth, against the stars above; E The fatal sisters three, he said, had done him wrong, Tha thread that should not have been spun, they had drawn forth too long. 1330 He wished that he had before this time been born, Or that as soon as he wan light, his life he had forlorn. His nurse he cursed, and the hand that gave him pap, The midwife eke with tender grip that held him in her lap; And then did he complain...
